Dave Isay

Dave Isay is the founder of StoryCorps and the recipient of numerous broadcasting honors, including six Peabody Awards and a MacArthur Fellowship. He is the author/editor of numerous books that grew out of his public radio documentary work. In 2015 he received the TED Prize, awarded annually to one exceptional individual with a creative, bold vision to spark global change. His latest StoryCorps book, Callings: The Purpose and the Passion of Work, was released in 2016.

Lucy Koh

Lucy Koh is a United States District Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California. She is the first Asian American United States district court judge in the Northern District of California, the first district court judge of Korean descent in the United States, and the second Korean American federal judge. During her tenure on the court, she has presided over a number of high-profile legal suits involving the technology industry, including Apple Inc. v. Samsung Electronics Co., and multidistrict privacy litigation against Apple and Gmail.

Pierre Thomas

Pierre Thomas is the Senior Justice Correspondent for ABC News. He joined the network in November 2000 and reports for “World News Tonight with David Muir,” “Good Morning America,” “Nightline,” and other ABC News programs. He has been a key member of ABC News teams honored with Emmy Awards and Edward R. Murrow Awards. In 2012, he was named Journalist of the Year by the National Association of Black Journalists.
Speakers

Rosa Rios
Rosa Rios was the 43rd Treasurer of the United States, serving in that position between 2009 and 2016. She is most recently known for leading the effort to place a woman on U.S. currency for the first time in over a century, culminating in the 2016 Treasury Department announcement that women will be placed on the $5, $10, and $20 bills. Ms. Rios is a Visiting Scholar at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study at Harvard University. She has unveiled the first project of her EMPOWERMENT 2020 initiative, Teachers Righting History, an educational project that highlights historic American women.

Sam Wineburg
Sam Wineburg is the Margaret Jacks Professor of Education and History at Stanford University, and the founder of the Stanford History Education Group (SHEG), whose curriculum and assessments have been downloaded over four million times, making SHEG among the largest providers of free curriculum for the social studies. His latest research focuses on how young people learn how to judge the credibility of content on the unregulated Internet.

Hasan Jeffries
Hasan Jeffries is Associate Professor of History at The Ohio State University, where he teaches graduate and undergraduate seminars on the Civil Rights and Black Power Movement, and surveys on African American and American history. His current book project, Stealing Home: Ebbets Field and Black Working Class Life in Post-Civil Rights New York, explores the struggle of working class African Americans from the civil rights era to the present.
Linda K. Wertheimer is the award-winning author of Faith Ed, Teaching About Religion In An Age of Intolerance. Ms. Wertheimer, a former education editor of The Boston Globe, has written about education for roughly 25 years, including at The Dallas Morning News and The Orlando Sentinel.

Chad Williams is Associate Professor and Chair of the Department of African and Afro-American Studies at Brandeis University. He specializes in African American and modern United States History, African American military history, the World War I era, and African American intellectual history. He is currently completing a study of W.E.B. Du Bois and World War I.

Susan Shirk is research professor and chair of the 21st Century China Center in the School of Global Policy & Strategy at the University of California, San Diego. She is one of the most influential experts working on U.S.-China relations and Chinese politics. She served as deputy assistant secretary of state from 1997 to 2000, responsible for U.S. policy toward China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Mongolia. Dr. Shirk’s book, China: Fragile Superpower, helped frame the policy debate on China in the U.S. and other countries.
Speakers

David Christian

David Christian is by training a historian of Russia and the Soviet Union. In 1989, he began teaching courses on “Big History” at Macquarie University, surveying the past on the largest possible scales, including those of biology and astronomy. In 2004, he published the first text on “Big History.” In 2009, Bill Gates became very interested in Big History; he contacted Dr. Christian and they collaborated on the free online course that is now available for high school students all over the world.

Steven Johnson

Steven Johnson is an American popular science author and media theorist. He is the author of eight bestselling books, and is also host and executive producer of the PBS series How We Got To Now with Steven Johnson. His latest book, Wonderland, explores how the pursuit of wonder is a powerful driver of world-shaping technological change, and that future is found wherever people are having the most fun.
Citizenship

Naturalization Ceremony and Panel Discussion
The 97th NCSS Annual Conference will serve as host for a United States Citizenship and Immigration Services Naturalization Ceremony. Watch as dozens of immigrants from numerous countries take the Oath of Allegiance, the final step in a long process to become the newest American citizens. This moving ceremony will include a conversation with Judge Lucy Koh and Karen Korematsu, discussing the significance of the event and offering advice to the newly naturalized citizens.

Teaching the C3 Framework, Part II: A Guide to Inquiry Based Instruction in the Social Studies
Kathy Swan, John Lee, S.G. Grant
The newly published NCSS Bulletin, Teaching the C3 Framework, Part II, with chapters from 14 curriculum partners, is an instructional guide to using the C3 Framework and the Inquiry Design Model (IDM) in the social studies classroom. This panel will provide an overview of the inquiries in the Bulletin and descriptions of how their institutions are supporting inquiry in the classroom and the C3 Framework.

The Next Generation of Social Studies Assessments
Sam Wineburg, Joel Breakstone, Mark Smith
Members of the Stanford History Education Group will discuss assessments of historical thinking that feature Library of Congress documents and tasks that assess how students evaluate online content about social and political issues.
Vital Issue Sessions

Teaching for Social Justice in Today’s Political Climate
Karen Zapata, Adam Sanchez, Dominique Williams, Patrick Camangian, Elizabeth Humphries
How do we make, implement and defend curricular choices as we address current social justice issues in the classroom? How do we navigate divisive topics while giving voice to all our students? How do we design our lessons and selection of materials for engagement? A panel of seasoned teachers and educators discusses the challenges and best practices of history instruction with a social justice lens.

A Revised C3 Framework: Taking First Amendment Rights Seriously While Studying Religion
Charles Haynes, Michael Smith, Maha Elgenaidi.
Moderated by Kristen Looney
Religious studies is now an eighth core discipline in the print and online versions of the C3 Framework. Panelists will discuss how to equip educators with the background and tools they need to protect the First Amendment rights of students and teachers when questions arise—often from parents—about religion in the classroom or broader school environment. Panelists will pay special attention to curricular and training resources available for teachers and administrators.

A Revised C3 Framework: Teaching with the New Religious Studies Supplement
Religious studies is now an eighth core discipline in the print and online versions of the C3 Framework. Panelists will discuss if and how the student learning indicators and disciplinary framework included in the new Religious Studies Supplement conform with the academic study of religion. Panelists will pay special attention to recommendations for integrating the frameworks and learning indicators in a variety of social studies classrooms, including history and civics.
San Francisco offers an abundance of resources for the social studies classroom, and NCSS pre-conference clinics offer many options to take advantage of them through in-depth, hands-on sessions. Pre-conference clinics are focused, content-based programs conducted by well-known professional development providers, NCSS members, and San Francisco organizations.

This is a small sampling of more than 800 presentations offered throughout the conference. Descriptions of all sessions are now available at www.socialstudies.org/conference/sessions

This sample listing of sessions is preliminary. All days and times are subject to change.

Using Content Area Literacy Strategies in the Social Studies Classroom

Students struggle with improving their understanding of social studies content and language used within social studies. Learn about multiple literacy strategies that improve understanding and mastery of content.

History Lab! A History-STEM Partnership in Your Classroom

STEM doesn't have to take over the humanities. Partnering the STEM fields with history education creates experiences that drive students and rejuvenate the curriculum. Learn how to transform your classroom.

Integrating Geography and Art to Create Social Activism

Learn about a methodology to develop students-as-activists through a collaborative Human Geography and art curriculum, using PBL, STEAM, and the C3 Framework.

Teaching Economic Thinking in Middle School and High School

Featured Sessions

C3, Literacy Strategies and Inquiry Practices for Middle School U.S. History
Cause/effect, compare/contrast, and problem solving skills are emphasized in C3 and CORE ELA standards, and are applicable in U.S. history instruction. Explore active inquiry strategies and practices to teach them.

Take a Schoolcation! Virtual Trips Using Google Arts & Culture
Develop empathy and critical thinking while expanding horizons with Google Arts & Culture and GSuite. Participants will virtually experience museums and world wonders through scavenger hunts, exhibit building, and games.

Eight Ways to Engage Students Who Think History is Boring
Learn eight engagement strategies to hook students. Challenge yourself in this hands-on session to think outside the lecture box by focusing on the essential elements of project-based learning.

Effectively Integrate Social Studies into the Literacy Block
Do you need more time to teach social studies? Learn strategies to integrate social studies into the literacy block and engage students with meaningful texts. Receive materials to use immediately.

Effective and Stressless Ways to Integrate Tech into your Lessons
Engage and motivate students using proven “free” game changing tech tools along with current tech trends to bolster your curriculum. Digital presentations, Nearpod, simulations, assessments, memes, Twitter, podcasts, collaborations, apps . . .
Featured Sessions

Descriptions of all sessions are now available at www.socialstudies.org/conference/sessions

Enlivening Elem. Economics through the Arts, Simulations, and Literature
Even the youngest students can learn important economics through art, simulations, and children’s books. Experience C3 standards-aligned lesson plans that you can take back to your classroom.

Beginning Inquiry: Strategies for Engaging Students and Generating Questions
Learn strategies and teaching techniques that leverage visual and short texts to inspire curiosity and facilitate student-initiated questioning. Discover inquiry pathways derived from texts.

Using Ken Burns’s “The Vietnam War” in the Classroom
Join film co-producer Lynn Novick and lesson developers Michael Hutchison and Greg Timmons in an interactive presentation on new and innovative methods to teach this pivotal period of U.S. history.

Expanding the Vision of Social Studies Education in Elem. School
What should social studies education look like in an elementary school setting as students make sense of our rapidly and socially changing world?

Using Interactives for K-12 Civic Education
Through a grant from the Library of Congress, educational organizations have created free interactives on Congress and civic participation. Explore the interactives and discuss classroom applications.
