

Your Story Our Story Frequently Asked Questions

This resource contains answers to some common questions about how to participate and what stories to share on Your Story, Our Story. Each answer includes example stories that highlight a variety of ways to participate.

Write to us at yourstory@tenement.org with other questions or concerns.

What if I don't have anything important to write about?

What if I don't know anything about my family's history?

I have a complicated and multi-heritage family, how can I tell my family's story in 250 words?

What if I don't have a physical object to write about?

What if my family doesn't have a connection to immigration?

I'm adopted, how can I participate?

How can I support my group participants when difficulty and trauma arise?

I'm not in contact with my biological family, how can I participate?

What if I don't have the object I'm writing about?

How can I submit a story in a language other than English?

What if I don't have anything to write about that's important?

Your Story Our Story considers the stories of everyday people important for understanding our country's past and present. We seek out stories of everyday objects, and stories that carry emotional value rather than monetary value. We hope everyone can find something that represents their story.

See these stories for creative interpretations:

Challah Bread

Rice Cooker

Blue 18-Wheeler Truck

What if I don't know anything about my family's history?

Whatever the reason for the unknown, unknown history is part of American history. Your Story Our Story welcomes entries that explore the questions we have about our family's lost heritage, that share the difficulty of finding out more about family history, and that highlight the process of finding our own identity when we don't have connections to the past.

See these stories for ideas:

Pasta in Ascoli

Brigid's Cross

The Metal Cup

I have a complicated and multi-heritage family, how can I tell my family's story in 250 words?

Your Story Our Story hopes to hear from people who have complex stories! We think it's best to share a family story, rather than the family story. Consider selecting one facet of your identity to share in your entry, but also incorporating some of those complexities into your entry.

See these stories for ideas:

Po Tat

Photo

Dining Room Buffet

What if I don't have a physical object to write about?

There are many reasons why someone might not have a physical object to write about, and Your Story Our Story invites participants to share whether or not they have an object. Consider writing about a recipe, meal, holiday tradition, song, a name, or anything else that carries meaning—be creative!

See these stories for ideas:

The Music of the Beatles

Pita

What if my family doesn't have a connection to immigration?

Your Story Our Story aims to explore the fullness and complications of American identity and its evolution. Stories about cultural identity, family identity, and community identity are necessary in this exploration, whether or not that identity connects to immigration or migration.

See these stories for ideas:

Cup for Carrying Water

Bear Claw Necklace

I'm adopted, how can I participate?

We welcome stories about adoptive family!

See these stories for ideas:

Mother Lion

Baby Bib

How can I support my group participants when difficulty and trauma arise?

We acknowledge that stories about immigration, migration, and identity may contain inherent difficulty and pain, and we encourage group leaders to make sure everyone knows they only need to share as much as they want to share. Stories do not have to be made public on Your Story Our Story, and participants could share their story through writing, drawing, or speaking. A group leader might also consider organizational support available (guidance counselor, social worker) for students or participants. We hope that people will share so that others may learn.

I'm not in contact with my biological family, how can I participate?

Your Story Our Story defines family broadly, and we invite stories about a person's individual story and identity, or about chosen family identity.

What if I don't have the object I'm writing about?

Many of us know about objects in our family story that were lost over time, taken, or broken, or objects that a relative far away might still have. We encourage you to draw or paint a picture of the object, take a picture of something that represents the object, or create another kind of visual artwork to tell the story.

See these stories for ideas:

Porcelain Clock

Bathtub

How can I submit a story in a language other than English?

You can record and submit audio in any language using a mobile phone, or you can upload a picture of a translation in another language. You could also share a written story in both English and another language.

See these stories for ideas:

Dolls \(Las Muñecas\) from Home

Phone